Tatton Dale Farm in Tatton Park, Knutsford, Cheshire has recently received Heritage Lottery funding to help tell the story of food production for a large country estate from the late 18th century to the 1950s. The 'field to fork' story will be told through the mouths of former farm workers and the estate family members, the farm buildings (some of which will be open to the public for the first time), machinery, animals and traditional agricultural skills. A visit will provide an intriguing and enjoyable exploration of this uniquely well-preserved window into the story of farming and food production at Tatton Park. A unique location specific App is being developed together with sculptural and interactive elements.
